

Statutory Rape

Connecticut law says there are some situations where having sex or sexual contact is illegal, even though both people agree to it. Here are some of the most common ways statutory rape can happen:

Younger Person	Older Person	Penetration or Touching?	Punishment
Under 13	More than 2 years older	Touching	Felony: Sentence up to 5 years
Under 13	More than 2 years older	Penetration	Felony: 10 - 25 year sentence, No parole for 2 years, Sex offender registration
13 or 14	More than 3 years older	Touching	Felony: Sentence up to 5 years
13, 14, 15	More than 3 years older	Penetration	Felony: 1-20 year sentence, No parole for 9 months, Possible sex offender registration

Also, in some cases when an older person has a position of power or influence over another person, sex or sexual contact between those two people can be statutory rape. Some examples of this would be any sexual contact between someone under 18 and his/her guardian, a coach and a team member, a school employee and a student in the same school district, or a therapist and a patient.

This chart does not include all examples of statutory rape.

The complete Connecticut General Statutes on sexual assault are on our website. Go to kidscounsel.org/teenlegalrights. Scroll down the page and click on Statutory Rape.

Statutory rape is a crime.

The crime is called sexual assault.

In Connecticut, the law says there are some situations where having sex or sexual contact is illegal, even though both people agree to it.

Need Help?

Statutory rape is a crime called sexual assault. In Connecticut, the law says there are some situations where having sex or sexual contact is illegal, even though both people agree to it.

For more information about your legal rights

- Go to kidscounsel.org and click on Teen Legal Rights
- Go to speakupteens.org and click on Helpful Resources
- Call us at 860-570-5327 or 203-223-8975

The information in this brochure is intended as reference only and should not be interpreted as legal advice in an individual case. If you need specific information about the law, please call 860-570-5327 or 203-223-8975.

Center for Children's Advocacy
65 Elizabeth Street, Hartford, CT 06105
kidscounsel.org

© CCA 2014

I am 14 and my boyfriend is 17.

Is that illegal?

What is Statutory rape?

What is statutory rape?

Statutory rape is a crime called sexual assault.

In Connecticut, the law says there are times that having sex or sexual contact is illegal, even though both people agree to it. The chart on the back of this brochure shows some of the ways that statutory rape can happen.

This brochure does not include all examples of statutory rape.

The complete Connecticut General Statutes on sexual assault are on our website. Go to www.kidscounsel.org/teenlegalrights and scroll down the page to click on Statutory Rape.

What counts as “sex” for statutory rape?

Any penetration counts as sex. That means oral, anal, and vaginal penetration all count as having sex under the statutory rape laws. Penetration can be with fingers or another object.

What does sexual contact mean? What if we’re just touching?

Sexual contact is any touching of the private parts, even if there is no penetration. See the chart on the back of this brochure for some examples of when this is illegal.

What’s the difference between rape and statutory rape?

Forcible rape is a crime where someone is forced to have sex when that person doesn’t want to. Usually, it is called rape. Statutory rape is consensual, which means that both people agree to have sex and there is no force or violence. Both are illegal.

If I am 14 and my boyfriend is 18 and we have sex, is he committing statutory rape?

Yes, because he is more than 3 years older than you.

What if I am 14 and my boyfriend is 17?

It depends on when your birthdays are. The older person only needs to be three years older by one day for this to be a crime.

Can the younger person get arrested for statutory rape?

No. Statutory rape is a crime committed by an older person who has sex or sexual contact with a younger person.

I am 18 and the girl I had sex with told me she was 16, but it turned out she was 14. Did I commit statutory rape, even though I thought she was old enough?

Yes. The law does not allow you to defend yourself by saying you thought she was older.

There are also situations where age does not matter.

For example, any sexual contact between you and your coach, or between you and someone who works at a school in your district, is illegal.

Can a girl commit statutory rape on a boy?

Yes.

Is it statutory rape if I am gay or lesbian?

Yes. The same laws apply to same-sex relationships.

How does statutory rape ever get reported?

Even if both people are having sex because they agree to, there are a few ways that statutory rape can get reported to the police:

- A parent or other adult may find out about the relationship and report it.
- The people may break up, and then the younger person could report it.
- A school social worker, teacher, nurse or doctor may find out and report it.
- The girl may get pregnant, and hospital workers could report the relationship if they know the father’s age.
- The girl may have a child and apply for cash assistance to help support the child. She will have to give information about the father.